Dry Cocktails

A dry cocktail pre-dinner drink or aperitif is an alcoholic beverage usually served before a meal, to stimulate the appetite. It is therefore usually dry rather sweet. Common choices for an aperitif include Vermouth , Champagne, Gin, Fino, Amontillado or other types of Dry Sherry (but not usually cream sherry, which is very sweet and rich ) as well as any still, dry, light white wine.

Medium Cocktails

The medium cocktail is usually a short drink.

In terms of limited volume, consisting of alcoholic ingredients, mixed with small amount of syrup and juices. These cocktails are divided into 'before' and 'after' dinner. Dry or bitter cocktail stimulate the appetite, which is why they are served before eating, while cocktail with a sweet character and a bigger share of liqueurs, cream or syrup are comparable to a type of desert and therefore ideal to end a meal. Our 'medium cocktail' drink fall into both the before and after dinner categories' so decide for yourself.

Margaritas

In Ensenada, Mexico, Danny Herrera, a renowned Mexican bartender who worked at the "Riviera del Pacifico" Hotel and Casino was completely in love with Marjorie King, an American actress who hated taking tequila pure. Tequila was also the only liquor that her body could tolerate. Thus, with the intention of wooing her, Herrera used his ingenuity to bring together flavours to meet Marjorie's taste, until he finally found one of the world's most famous drinks.

Pina Colada

The Pina Colada was introduced on August 16, 1954 at the Caribe Hilton's Beachcomber Bar in San Juan, Puerto Rico by its alleged creator Ramon "Monchito" Marrero.

Apparently the hotel management had expressly requested Monchito to mix a new signature drink that would delight the demanding palates of its "Star - Studded Clientele". Monchito accepted the challenge, and after three intense months of blending, shaking and experimenting, the first Pinna Colada was born.

This story is more credible because the Pina Colada contains cream of coconut as one of the primary ingredients, and the cream of coconut 'Coco Lopez' (which is the pioneer) was invented in 1954 in the University of Puerto Rico by Romon Lopez Juizarry . This story is confirmed Lose L. Diaz de Villegas in his book. Puerto Rico La Gran Cocina Del Caribe.by

Gin & Special Gin

The Imperial Cocktail

How the Gin and Tonic became the British empires secret weapon. Tonic water was first enjoyed in 1825 when ingenious (or hard drinking depending on how you look at it) British officers in the Indian army. Improved the bitter anti-malaria medicine Peruvian quinine extract by mixing it with Soda Water Sugar and Gin. Instead of drinking the medicine with the troops at dawn, the officer figured out how to enjoy it at cocktail hour.

The original Gin and Tonic was born, and it soon became the quintessential drink of the British Empire.
